Summary of Information:

At its August 15th meeting, the Public Works Committee requested that staff prepare an amendment to the City Code to change the City’s financial contribution to drainage projects from seventy (70) to eighty (80) percent for those projects in which the average value of the single-family residential dwellings involved is equal to or less than the median value of a single-family residential dwelling within the city’s corporate limits. The Public Works Committee also requested that staff extend the repayment period for those property owners who finance their share of the project cost from five (5) years to ten (10). The attached document extends the repayment period to ten (10) years and caps the City’s financial contribution to projects in which the average value of the single-family residential dwellings involved is equal to or less than the median value of a single-family residential dwelling within the city’s corporate limits at eighty percent (80%) of the cost of the project or thirty-five thousand dollars ($35,000) per property, whichever is less.
