FEBRUARY 2025: ENHANCING THE ENVIRONMENT

As of January, we're clearing land and moving dirt along the Baity Street corridor. With the site of The Grounds now looking meaningfully different, it's a great time to envision the environmental transformation ahead, rooted in the restoration of Upper Silas Creek.

A substantial portion of the project's infrastructure and design work, this plan includes restoring natural stream banks and replanting native vegetation to create a harmonious balance – where people and nature will thrive together in community.

The image here represents growth by years 3-4 with perennial ground covers and wildflowers, grasses, shrubs, and trees becoming well established by 2029, and continuing to thrive long after that.
