Adopted by City Council in 2012, the Legacy 2030 Update comprehensive plan was intended to provide recommendations through the year 2030. As we approach 2030, Planning and Development Services staff has begun the process of developing a new comprehensive plan. To start this process, staff completed a literature review last year of recently adopted comprehensive plans from municipalities across the country. This review provided insight into current topics for consideration, document layout and organizational styles, and potential elements for inclusion in the new plan. Beginning this year, staff has begun analyzing current demographic data and researching current development trends and topics.

As staff moves forward in the plan development process, the next phase will include outreach to stakeholders and the general public to garner input on the desired vision for the community's future. Tentatively, this public outreach period will begin in fall 2022 and continue through summer 2023.

Planning staff will be available at the September 13 Community Development/Housing/General Government Committee meeting to provide an overview on the plan's development to date and the upcoming public outreach process. Staff will also provide information related to the general schedule for the plan update process.
